Henna is our seasoned specialist in environmental, natural resources and land use law, providing top-tier legal expertise and strategic guidance in these sectors. With over 15 years of experience, Henna has adeptly managed a diverse portfolio of complex and high-stakes assignments. Her expertise encompasses regulatory compliance, environmental litigation, environmental liabilities, nature conservation, environmental permitting, zoning and land use as well as energy and renewables.

Henna's extensive background equips her to tackle the distinctive challenges that companies encounter in environmental administrative processes. She has a proven track record of success, particularly in environmental litigation, where her strategic acumen has been a significant asset.

Henna's holistic approach to legal counsel combines in-depth knowledge of regulation, business acumen, and litigation process. This enables her to steer clients through intricate environmental issues and develop effective risk mitigation strategies, contributing to the prosperity of their business.

Henna's journey with Borenius began in 2008 when she joined the firm as an Associate, fresh from her graduation.
